NEDS President's Message:

What a spring – it seems like it has been March for months now. While the day-lilies are loving the rain, I'm hoping for a little warmer temperature. I noticed some strange happenings in the garden this spring. Large clumps, for no reason are starting to turn yellow. I figured I'd clear some of the weeds around them and ended up pulling them right out. It appears those blasted chipmunks are setting up the buffet under these plants and eating the crowns until there is nothing left!!! Any one got any good ways of getting rid of chippies???? I'm planning to spread Milorganite so hopefully that will help matters.

As always I enjoyed the NEDS members' sale; a big thanks to Rachel for all her hard work on it. Both this and the public sale are a great way to get cultivars that grow well in our region. Over the years some of my favorite plants have come from our sales. If you missed the members' sale, there still is the public sale in August. We need everyone's help to make this a success. Look around your garden this summer. Do you have any big clumps that need dividing? If so, think of us this fall. The more money we make, the more speakers we can have in...

I know we have been missing the heat here in New England – but it was hot hot hot down in Louisiana and I'm not just talking about the weather (if anyone wants some hot sauce – I bought plenty). The national was one of the best I've been to. The gardens were fabulous. It was great seeing so many different hybridizers and cultivars. I had to come home with 5 of Joe Goudeau's plants. Hunky Dory is settling in to my catmint tree (which is all spider/UFO). And how could I resist Green Eggs and Ham? (Another theme bed idea – a library bed hmm.....) Our air conditioner in the car broke about 200 miles from Baton Rouge, and the car developed an oil leak on the way home (hey it has 230,000++ miles on it), but it was worth the ride. My one regret is that none of the tour gardens had any cats. I saw 2 dogs (and ducks and parakeets), but no cats. If you twist my arm I may show some of the pictures I took....

The weeds took advantage of the 2 weeks I was gone and in some places are taller than the daylilies. Slowly I'm getting the beds back under control, just in time to head out to the regional. The early bird discount has expired, but it is worth a trip to Canada to see the tour gardens. I'm not sure which one I most want to see--- Betty's or Dave's???? And save some room in your summer for our daylily exhibition at Tower Hill on July 23. Cut some scapes and bring them in. We will show you how to groom them-- and who knows-- you may win best in show.

I have a new toy – I changed cell phone providers and got a smart phone (the HTC Incredible 2). I'm still trying to figure my way around it, but so far it is really cool. I can get my email on it, the weather, the phases of the moon, the night sky, news headlines – oh and I think it makes phone calls too...

And then there is Earl. I never write about Earl, except when writing about something another cat (usually his sister) did. Earl is becoming quite demanding in his own quiet way. He doesn't meow to go out, or when the fridge door is open, or pull open windows, (he is too large to get out of the window) and he doesn't run much. But he has started doing something new. Whenever the mood strikes him he walks right up to you and stares you down. This is your signal to stop what you are doing and bend down and pet him. And pet him and pet him. This is not limited to when you return home. There is just enough room in my easy chair for me the laptop and Earl. He doesn't stay long, but keeps coming back to get his ears scratched. It's only taken 6 years or so, but he is turning into a cuddle bunny. There may be hope to calm Rocket down – he's only been here 8 years.

From the May Auction Chair:

Thank you everyone who supported the May Sales and Auction!

Regrettably, I need to resign as May Sales and Auction Chair. It has been a great tenure, but time to turn over the reigns to someone else.

This is a great opportunity to start volunteering for the club. Please contact me by email if you are interested.

NEDS DISPLAY GARDEN at ELM BANK– HELP NEEDED!

HELP HELP

The NEDS display garden has been blooming since May and had just started blooming daylilies other than yellow, orange and gold. Hope you can drop by sometime this summer to deadhead or weed. This is not just my garden you know. It's for all of us to take care of and share with the public. There is a summer camp going on all around the garden, so it's lots of fun. Recently we were interviewed by Kate Bandzmer's blog <http://beyondthebrambles.blogspot.com> and she is planning on some good publicity for us, so check out her blog in the next week or so. Don't forget you can get some great pollen from our garden and you can check out the scape density of our 650 cultivars. I have been picking off snails all spring. We seem to have a plethora of them. I have just invested in some Sluggo which is organic and promises to get the slugs and snails. Captain Jack's Deadbug is also organic and promises to take care of our thrips if I get the time to spray it on. Hope to see you soon.

Post notices at nurseries. Tell your gardening friends. Come to the exhibition and bring as many scapes as you can. See you there!

BEGINNING AT noon..

Don't miss the special programs at the Tower Hill Theatre, produced and directed by Denise Pavlovich.

At 1:30 p.m., the Exhibition opens, with 200 to 300 of the finest daylilies grown in the Northeast. This is a terrific time to grow your wish list.

The success of our Exhibition depends on members getting involved. Remember, you can exhibit current or older daylilies. We look forward to seeing everyone there. It promises to be a wonderful time.

Daylily Sales and Membership Table:

We have room for one more person to sell daylilies at the exhibition. If you'd like to sell daylilies at the exhibition, you would agree to give NEDS 10% of your total sales and 1 daylily donation for the raffle. Contact Denise (978.433.0445) or email her at dpav54@hotmail.com.

We need one or two people to man the membership table. We are looking for people with an abundance of enthusiasm to explain the benefits of joining the daylily society. Hopefully, when visitors learn that becoming a member of AHS means they are also members of AHS Region 4 and NEDS, some will immediately want to join. Visitors who join AHS on this day will receive a free daylily plant and discounts toward the purchase of plants at various gardens.

Enticements are needed to recruit new members to AHS and to raffle off to the general public. One of the goals is to educate the public about our favorite flower and to recruit new members to AHS. If you have a daylily, seeds, or want to offer a discount coupon to your selling garden, contact Denise to let her know.

Judging of Scapes:

Judging will begin promptly at 11:00 am. Clerks are to report by 10:30 am-- Nicki Dricken, Mary Hubbell, Judy Hartel, Anna Wilken, Valerie Price, Kim Walters, Shirley Ann Robbins, Margo Maione, Bill Chambers, Roland Corbeil, and Adele Keohan. The exhibition will open to the public at 1:30 pm.
